

Lauren Davis

Clinical & AI Integration Psychologist
Mental Health Coach for Leaders and HR
Keynote Speaker • Podcast Host

About Lauren

Lauren Davis works at the intersection of leadership, workplace mental health, HR, and AI transformation. She helps leaders, HR teams, and organisations strengthen wellbeing, performance, and the human capability needed to navigate change and AI implementation.

With extensive experience working with a wide variety of organisations, Lauren specialises in the psychological and behavioural factors that determine whether people can adapt, lead, and perform sustainably through change.

Lauren combines deep clinical insight with practical organisational experience, translating complex human dynamics into clear strategies for leadership, performance, wellbeing, and change readiness. She coaches senior leaders and HR professionals, facilitates workshops, delivers keynotes, and hosts the podcast: Beneath the Busy.

Her core belief is simple: when leaders are not well, organisations do not function well. Her work is grounded in one guiding principle: Be Well, Lead Well.

Impact

Build sustainable high performance without sacrificing wellbeing, engagement, or retention.

Create psychologically safe cultures that improve adaptability, communication, and trust during change

Recognise and reduce burnout, cognitive overload, and change fatigue before they become business risks

Equip leaders and HR teams to navigate the human side of AI adoption and organisational transformation

Topics

- AI Doesn't Implement Itself
- Menopause in the Boardroom
- Beneath the busy
- Caring Without Crumbling: HR for HR

✉ lauren@ljdwellbeing.com
🌐 www.ljdwellbeing.com
📱 @Laurendavissa
☎ +27 83 266 1692

Beneath the Busy

A podcast on workplace mental health and leadership wellbeing

