SHORT BIOGRAPHY (70 words)

Dr Pumela Salela is an internationally recognised expert in trade, investment and economic diplomacy. She is CEO of Invest Global and former UK Country Head for Brand South Africa. Having worked across government, multilateral institutions and the private sector, including the World Bank and Rockefeller Foundation, she is known for connecting global investors with African opportunities. Today she speaks, moderates and directs high-level conferences where business, policy and international development intersect.

MEDIUM BIOGRAPHY (180 words)

Dr Pumela Salela is a global business facilitator, keynote speaker, programme director and moderator with over two decades of experience spanning government, international development, investment promotion and economic diplomacy.

She is the CEO of Invest Global, where she leads initiatives that connect investors, governments and businesses across Africa and international markets.

Previously, she served as Country Head for the United Kingdom at Brand South Africa, where she promoted South Africa internationally, attracted foreign direct investment and strengthened the country's global reputation. Earlier in her career she held senior executive roles within the South African Government and served as a consultant to the World Bank and Rockefeller Foundation.

Dr Salela has addressed audiences across Africa, Europe, the United States, Asia and the Middle East. Her unique combination of policy expertise, investment experience and executive leadership enables her to moderate complex conversations involving Heads of State, Ministers, CEOs, investors and global institutions.

She is recognised for transforming conferences into strategic conversations that deliver insight, credibility and commercial value rather than simply managing an agenda.

FULL BIOGRAPHY (250 words)

As a Global Programme Director, Strategic Moderator and Keynote Speaker, Dr Salela is recognised for elevating conferences into meaningful executive conversations. She brings far more than stage presence; she contributes intellectual depth, commercial understanding and policy insight that enrich discussions and engage audiences. Her ability to synthesise complex issues, ask insightful questions and connect diverse perspectives has made her a trusted conference leader for international investment forums, government summits, boardroom dialogues and executive leadership events.

Her keynote presentations and moderated discussions focus on international trade, investment attraction, economic diplomacy, foreign direct investment, industrialisation, the African Continental Free Trade Area (AfCFTA), country branding, strategic partnerships, leadership, governance and Africa's evolving role in the global economy. She is equally comfortable addressing global executives, moderating ministerial panels or directing multi-day international conferences where diplomacy, business and policy converge.

In addition to leading Invest Global, Dr Salela serves as Chairman of SoluGrowth and continues to advise organisations seeking to expand internationally, strengthen stakeholder relationships and unlock new markets. She is passionate about positioning Africa as a globally competitive investment destination and believes that purposeful leadership, strategic collaboration and economic diplomacy are fundamental to inclusive and sustainable development.

Whether delivering a keynote address, moderating a high-level executive dialogue or directing a global conference, Dr Pumela Salela brings something few speakers can offer: the credibility of lived executive experience, the perspective of an international strategist and the ability to lead conversations that influence decisions, inspire collaboration and shape the future of trade, investment and economic diplomacy.

She is equally comfortable addressing global executives, moderating ministerial panels or directing multi-day international conferences where diplomacy, business and policy converge.

Dr Salela has served as a consultant to the World Bank and the Rockefeller Foundation, contributing to initiatives focused on economic development, institutional strengthening and strategic transformation. These experiences have given her a rare ability to bridge public policy, private sector priorities and international development objectives; bringing practical insight and strategic perspective to every stage she occupies.

Holding a PhD in Management and an MBA from the United Kingdom as a Nelson Mandela Scholar, Dr Salela combines academic excellence with extensive executive experience. Rather than speaking from theory alone, she draws on decades of firsthand experience negotiating investment opportunities, facilitating international partnerships, advising senior decision-makers and leading complex, high-level stakeholder engagements.

In addition to leading Invest Global, Dr Salela serves as Chairman of SoluGrowth and continues to advise organisations seeking to expand internationally, strengthen stakeholder relationships and unlock new markets. She is passionate about positioning Africa as a globally competitive investment destination and believes that purposeful leadership, strategic collaboration and economic diplomacy are fundamental to inclusive and sustainable development.

Add on:

Few speakers have sat on both sides of the table, inside government shaping policy, inside global institutions influencing development, and inside boardrooms facilitating international investment. Dr Pumela Salela has.

Add on:

Very few can confidently run a three-day international summit with Presidents, Ministers, ambassadors, CEOs and investors while adding intellectual value throughout the programme
