CONTRACTS, CROSS-BORDER INFRASTRUCTURE AND ENERGY TRANSACTIONS

I write this reference on behalf of Zingisa Motloba with whom I worked closely during my tenure as Senior General Manager: Southern African Energy in Eskom Transmission Division.

Zingisa was the lead advisor for Eskom's Africa expansion strategy in diversified power exploration, which included new generation and transmission investments, power imports and exports, providing strategic transaction and regulatory advice.

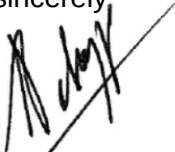

Zingisa also supported me in representing South Africa's interests at the Southern Africa Power Pool (SAPP) as well as the Association of Power Utilities in Africa (APUA) established under the African Union. In those forums, she was the lead representative on all Legal Compliance and Governance structures providing valuable input into drafting by-laws, governing policy documents and charters.

Over a number of years, Zingisa brought her knowledge and experience in Public-Private Partnerships (PPPs) and large infrastructure projects to support my team with the following:

- Negotiating and drafting Electricity Supply Agreements with neighbouring countries;
- Advising multidisciplinary teams on all aspects of a cross-border gas pipeline project;
- Advising multidisciplinary teams on a 20-year concession for the operation and management of a national hydro-plant electricity supply undertaking in a SADC country;
- Advising on the regulatory and contractual requirements for various regional inter-country transmission line interconnectors to strengthen the regional transmission grid;
- Negotiating and advising on the multi-country project in relation to Grand Inga;
- Strengthening South Africa's position at the SAPP;
- Supporting the collaborative role of the SAPP with other regional power pools;
- Representing South Africa and SADC's interests at APUA;
- Reviewing, renegotiating and redrafting all governance frameworks at the SAPP to strengthen of regional co-operation and efficiency of the SAPP.

Zingisa has a very solid grasp of legal, regulatory, and governance issues, and she has the finesse required in the management of multiple stakeholders (including high level government representatives) that characterize complex projects such as those that were under the custody of the Southern African Energy Unit. Her contribution often went far beyond the mere legal aspects, and helped us with strategic negotiations and project management. She worked very well with colleagues from across the various disciplines of Grid Planning, Project Finance, Procurement, NERSA (Regulator) and Executive teams within Eskom.

Yours sincerely
